FOREWORD.

The Catalogue contains the names, with those of their authors, of the books purchased or received by presentation for the Library of the Islamia College, Calcutta, during the first seven years of its existence, 1926-33.

The classification of subjects follows in the main that set forth with such mastery in M. Dewey's Decimal Classification and Relative Index (ed. 1927). This system does not preclude certain adaptations, and in a collection which will eventually have a large representation of Oriental works, especially in the languages of Islam, this option has been availed of, and adaptations introduced to admit of expansion according to the growing needs of Arabic, Persian, Urdu and Bengali in particular. The system of transliteration adopted is as scientific as conditions and typographical exigencies permit.

A Subject Index has been put in the forefront, and it is hoped that this will immediately establish its serviceability. Owing to the multiplicity of books, a reader has to learn to "skim", and likewise precious time must be saved to him by enabling him to obtain with facility any volume required.

The Catalogue was started by Maulavi Abdur Rahman, M.A., and on his transfer was completed and revised throughout with the assistance of his successor, Maulavi A. F. M. Abdul Majid Rushdi, M.A. (ALIG.). To both a high tribute must be paid for their industry and zeal, and no less to the members of the College staff for their willing and meritorious help. In classifying the books consistency in the method of placing has been a constant aim.

A. H. HARLEY,

Principal, Islamia College, Calcutta.
